Visit the land of milk and honey. And cheese.

But if you come, be prepared to have something taken away from you.

Your breath.

Because there are no greener pastures, prettier mountains, or fresher rivers than ours.

Local dairymen have enven gone so far as to call this paradise. But that's mostly because the gentle coastal climate here permits their cows to produce the best milk on earth. Which is key to the making of what we call "heavenly cheddar".

All-natural Tillamook cheese.

So come visit. Particularly at our creamery and year-round visitor center, two-and-on-half miles north of the Tillamook city center on Highway 101. (We make and serve the best ice cream on the Coast!)

Tillamook, Oregon

Perhaps the most delicious place you'll ever visit.

BAKED CHEDDAR TOAST

1 cup heavy cream or whipping cream
1 cup shredded Tillamook Medium Cheddar
¼ tsp. white pepper
½ tsp. ground nutmeg
4 eggs, well beaten
12 slices bread

In the top of a double boiler, combine cream, cheddar, white pepper and nutmeg. Stir over hot water until cheddar melts and mixture is blended. Cool to lukewarm. Generously butter a large baking sheet; set aside. Preheat oven to 375°. Beat eggs into cooled cheddar mixture. Cut bread slices diagonally. Dip bread pieces into cheddar misture 1 at a time. Place ½-inch apart on prepared baking sheet. Bake until browned and bubbly. About 15 min. Makes 6 servings.

Look for the good ship Morningstar as you approach the creamery.

HARRY GLICKMAN

The Portland Trail Blazers, one of the most successful franchises in all of sports and a model for other organizations in professional basketball, point to the accomplishments of one man as the foundation for their rise to the top.

The man is Harry Glickman.

It was more than just a fitting tribute to the highly successful Blazer President when he was enshrined in the Oregon Sports Hall of Fame in August of 1986. It was recognition for the man who has been the compelling force in introducing and maintaining professional sports in the Pacific Northwest.

The success of the Trail Blazers has been unequalled since Glickman first began wooing a franchise to Portland as early as the mid-1960's.

In January of 1970, Glickman went to the league meetings of the NBA in Philadelphia with the backing for a franchise. Expansion into San Diego, Phoenix and Seattle, coupled with the transplanting of the Minneapolis Lakers to Los Angeles and the Philadelphia Warriors to San Francisco, opened up the West Coast to the predominately eastern league and enhanced Portland's bid for a team.

At the Philadelphia meetings, Glickman found the ground rules had changed and the ante had been increased for an expansion team. He returned home empty-handed but that initial setback was shortlived. A month later, with new financial backing, the Portland Trail Blazers were born at a meeting in Los Angeles.

Just seven seasons into existence, the Blazers brought a world championship to the city of Portland. Glickman's initial commitment to putting Portland at the forefront of the NBA has never wavered, avoiding the complacency that sometimes accompanies success.

Entering the 1987-88 season, the Blazers have sold out an astounding 443 consecutive homes games at Memorial Coliseum. That's easily the longest string by any team in any sport.

Glickman was born in Portland and graduated from the University of Oregon School of Journalism in 1948 following a stint in Germany during World War II. He served as director of the university's athletic news bureau as a sophomore during the Ducks' Cotton Bowl era of the late Norm Van Brocklin, one of Glickman's close friends.

Plans to become a sports writer were tabled as Glickman began to open doors for himself in the area of promotions and publicity. After founding Oregon Sports Attractions in 1952, he devoted his efforts to promoting boxing, professional football and the Harlem Globetrotters, as well as non-sports related activities such as the Northwest tours of Judy Garland and Liberace.

A pre-season football game between the Los Angeles Rams and the Chicago Cardinals in 1952 was staged by Glickman at Multnomah Civic Stadium. With more than 29,100 fans in attendance, it was his first sellout. He continued to bring the NFL to Portland until 1969.

Glickman served as manager of Multnomah Civic Stadium in 1958 and 1959.

In the fall of 1960, Glickman brought professional hockey back to Portland after a 10-year absence, organizing the Portland Buckaroos of the old Western Hockey League. During the '60s, the Buckaroos finished first seven times and second twice in one nine-year stretch. They smashed every attendance record in professional hockey outside the then tightly-knit six-team National Hockey League.

Glickman's commitment to improving the quality of life for the people of Oregon has not been limited just to providing the benefits derived from the realm of sports. He is active in a wide variety of civic affairs.

He is a member of the board of directors of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Oregon, the U.S. Committee Sports for Israel and the Sixth-Man Foundation. He's on the board of trustees of Congregation Beth Israel, and a member of the advancement council of the School of Journalism at the University of Oregon.

Glickman and his wife, Joanne, have two daughters, Lynn and Jennifer, and a son, Marshall. Jennifer is a publicity assistant with the Trail Blazers, and Marshall is director of media sales for NBA Properties in New York.

Glickman's hobbies include golf, tennis and fishing. He authored the popular book, 'Promoter Ain't a Dirty Word,' an account of his life in sports management.

JON SPOELSTRA

As professional sports continue to change with the times, operation costs escalate and the need for new ideas to offset those costs must be developed and implemented.

In Portland, that difficult task falls to Jon Spoelstra, the Trail Blazers' senior vice-president and general manager.

In his ninth year with the Blazers, Spoelstra oversees the organization's efforts in the areas of marketing, radio, television, cable, tickets and in developing community service projects.

The accomplishments of Portland's marketing department are widely noted in the world of professional sports. The Oregonian newspaper most accurately depicted the club's secret to success.

"The Portland marketing department serves as a model for the entire National Basketball Association," the paper reported in November of 1985, "and the main reason is Spoelstra."

A graduate of Notre Dame, where he earned a degree in communications, Spoelstra worked for the NBA's Buffalo franchise prior to coming to Portland in 1979. He has been the underlying force behind the Blazers' reputation for innovation, and his expertise has been sought by a number of other sports organizations.

In fact, it was that expertise that took Spoelstra into the center of one of the strangest trades in NBA history. When an injury to guard Darnell Valentine sent Portland searching for a replacement, Indiana veteran Don Buse was obtained by the club. The compensation to the Pacers was a man who had yet to see a minute of playing time in the NBA but who had earned an all-star reputation among the league's front office personnel—Jon Spoelstra. The Blazer marketing expert served as a consultant to the Pacers for a short time during the restructuring of that team's front office. It was a classic example of a transaction where both clubs benefited.

"Jon is a brilliant and effective marketing executive," said David Stern, commissioner of the National Basketball Association. "The NBA is very fortunate that he decided to devote his talents and energies to our sport."

The prevailing attitude that fuels Spoelstra's efforts is one of service.

"We have in our conference room a sign that reads 'service is everything'," Spoelstra pointed out. "We are constantly asking ourselves how we can better serve the people who are involved with the Trail Blazers, either as sponsors or fans. We're always looking to better the experience of being part of the Blazer family. This is what I call marketing."

A walk-on to the freshman basketball team at Notre Dame, Spoelstra originally planned to pursue a career as a sportswriter. His father, Watson Spoelstra, was on the staff of the Detroit News for 40 years and was a reporter for The Sporting News.

As often befalls a man of determination, other doors opened for Spoelstra, and he found his way to Portland. The Trail Blazers, as well as the entire league, have been reaping the benefits ever since.

Jon and his wife, Lisa, have two children. Monica is a senior at the University of Notre Dame and Erik is a senior at Jesuit High.

GEORGE RICKLES

You might say that George Rickles has worked with a lot of people over the years. Several million to be a bit more exact.

Rickles has been with the Trail Blazers since the team opened for business 18 years ago and now serves as Vice President of Administration. His primary responsibility has involved directing the club's ticket sales, and now its customer service center.

That's been no small task. In their first 17 years, the Blazers set attendance records that may seem nearly impossible for any organization in any sport to ever match.

No NBA franchise in history has drawn so many fans in such a short time as Portland has. During the team's brief lifetime, Rickles has sold seats to 8.1 million Blazer backers at Memorial Coliseum. The string of 443 consecutive sellouts entering the 1987-88 season is the longest of any organization in sports, and the end doesn't appear to be on the horizon with season tickets as much in demand as ever.

Prior to his Blazer career, Rickles directed the ticket operations for the Portland Buckaroos professional hockey team for 13 years. He helped set the attendance records for the Western Hockey League club.

An accomplished gourmet, Rickles has three sons, Norman and Steve, both Portland attorneys, and Jerry, operator of a local record store. His wife, Sharla, is a registered nurse, and they're enjoying their new roles as grandparents.

KEN BARTELL

Ken Bartell, vice-president of finance for the past three years, is serving in his new capacity as vice-president of sponsor services for the Trail Blazers.

A native of Niagra Falls, New York, Bartell served as general manager of Portland radio stations KEX and KQFM prior to joining the Blazer front office. He had been the stations' business manager for five years as well.

His business background began with Sheraton Hotels, where he served as controller, spending extended time in various cities in the United States and Puerto Rico. His financial expertise led him to his position as supervisor of the Blazers' financial business.

Bartell has been in charge of guiding the Trail Blazers' in-house computer operations. That's led to involvement in accounting, tickets, marketing and scouting.

CHARLENE HODGES

Portland's newest vice-president is Charlene Hodges, a member of the club's front office since December of 1985. She was named Vice-President/ Controller last August after serving as controller since her arrival.

Prior to joining the Blazers, Hodges spent eight years as the team's auditor while with Laventhol & Horwath. As a certified public accountant, she was with that firm for 13 years and left as audit manager.

Hodges, formerly Charlene Wirkkala before her marriage a year ago to Berlyn Hodges (the Blazers' Director of Marketing Servicees), is a Naselle, Wash. native. She graduated from Vancouver's Hudson's Bay High School and went on to earn a business degree in accounting from the University of Portland.

Proudly boasting a strong Finnish heritage, Charlene has a spectacular crystal collection and enjoys playing songs on the piano from her ancestral country. In her spare time, she can be found on the golf course or sunbathing on the deck at her new home.

MORRIS (BUCKY) BUCKWALTER

It's a long road from the Grande Ronde Valley of rural eastern Oregon to the glamorous metropolitan centers of the NBA.

But that didn't deter Bucky Buckwalter in his ascension to the position of Vice-President—Basketball Operations with the Portland Trail Blazers. It only helped provide a lifetime of extraordinary experiences for one of the game's most extraordinary personalities and best talent assessors.

Buckwalter begins his second full season in charge of Portland's player personnel, a position he assumed in January 1986 after serving as an assistant coach and chief scout for the club since 1979.

Through the years, Buckwalter has earned a reputation for discerning and discovering talent from a miriad of sources. His efforts have extended to every area of the globe and his courage to take calculated risks has been rewarded with numerous success stories.

It was Buckwalter's expertise that fostered Portland's bold move to act globally in the 1986 NBA Draft, securing the rights to Russian Arvidas Sabonis, considered among the most outstanding players in the world, and Drazen Petrovic of Yugoslavia. Buckwalter has spent considerable time analyzing the foreign leagues, and, in fact, served as head coach of the Brazilian national team when it upset the Russian team in Moscow during 1975. He'd even studied international law at the American Institute for Foreign Trade before devoting all his energy toward basketball.

Closer to home, Buckwalter has plucked several plums that have become valuable contributors to the success of the Trail Blazers. Foremost has been Terry Porter, the team's first round draft pick out of Wisconsin-Stevens Point; Jerome Kersey of Longwood College in Virginia and Steve Colter from New Mexico State, both second-round selections in 1984; Johnny Davis, a second round pick from Dayton in 1976; and Billy Ray Bates, a charismatic guard imported from the CBA during the 1979-80 season.

Buckwalter was introduced to professional basketball in the summer of 1972 when he joined the Seattle SuperSonics as an assistant coach. When Tom Nissalke was fired in January of 1973, Buckwalter took over as head coach for the remainder of the campaign. The following season, he was an assistant general manager to Bill Russell with the Sonics.

The 1974-75 season saw Buckwalter at the helm of the Utah Stars in the American Basketball Association. Perhaps his most notable accomplishment that year was to convince a youngster named Moses Malone from Petersburg, Virginia to forego a collegiate career in favor of a professional contract.

Buckwalter also coached the Fresno Stars of the Western Basketball Association for a year before joining the Trail Blazer staff.

His roots are deeply planted in the Oregon soil. A 1952 graduate of LaGrande High School, Buckwalter led his Blue Mountain Conference team to the state tournament as a 6-2 senior forward with a reputation for being a furious competitor. LaGrande finished fourth in the tournament, and Buckwalter, who was also senior class president, was selected as an all-state forward.

Buckwalter played collegiate basketball at Utah, where he led the team in scoring as a sophomore and was all-conference his last two seasons. Those two final years saw Utah reach the NCAA tournament only to lose to eventual champion San Francisco, which featured Bill Russell.

After serving as an assistant coach for eight seasons at Utah, Buckwalter took over as head coach at Seattle University in 1967-68 and in five seasons posted a sparkling 79-49 record, a .617 winning percentage.

Buckwalter's journeys have provided enough stories to fill a library with volumes of interesting anecdotes. When he wasn't taming the wild world of basketball, he could even have been found riding the range of the wild, wild west on the silver screen in "Pillars in the Sky" with Jeff Chandler and Dorothy Malone or playing opposite the legendary John Wayne in the film "McQ".

Buckwalter's wife, Paula, and son, Bryan, are two of the Blazers' most visible supporters at games and functions.

THEY'RE NOT LAUGHING ABOUT "INSURANCE FROM OUT IN OREGON" BACK EAST ANY MORE.

When Oregon Life was founded over 80 years ago, the idea that Oregon could have its own life insurance company created smug laughter in the board rooms of the giant Eastern insurance companies.

They stopped laughing long ago. The reason? Oregon Life grew up to become Standard Insurance Company, and now writes more life insurance and pays more benefits than any other life company in Oregon. And, Standard has become a significant force in the industry with $20 billion of life insurance in force and almost $1.4 billion in assets.

Why send your insurance premiums back East when you can do business with people from home?

A few words about pride.

To a world striving to communicate, we provide quality communications products and services. In an era of technological advances, we are a leader in innovation. Yet our pride is being part of the communities we serve—the cities and towns which look to GTE for answers to communications needs. We're proud of those communities and we're proud to contribute to the local arts.

The front-runner in communications.
And proud of it.

MIKE SCHULER

On the elite registry of NBA coaches, few ever ascend all the way to the top. Fewer yet have started out there. Mike Schuler is one who has.

After devoting most of his life to preparing for a head coaching position in the NBA, Schuler took little time in proving that he belongs there. Named the sixth head coach in Portland Trail Blazer history May 28, 1986, he was honored as NBA Coach of the Year just 11 months later, receiving the prestigious Red Auerbach Trophy in a vote of the nation's sportswriters and sportscasters.

"There's no substitute for winning," he said following the April 24 award presentation. "Succeeding is very important to me. I want to be a good coach. I've worked hard for a number of years to reach this level. I want to do everything I can not to fail."

The accolades poured in from around the country as fellow coaches and basketball media singled out Schuler for his achievements.

"The Portland Trail Blazers had every opportunity to fail this season," wrote Jan Hubbard of the Dallas Morning News, noting the Blazers' numerous injuries and the change in head coaches. "But rookie Coach Mike Schuler never lost confidence in himself, his system or his players. That is a tribute to Schuler, who should be Coach of the Year."

For some, the satisfaction that comes with being honored as best in the game would be the crowning glory on a long career. But for the 47-year-old Mike Schuler, it's only the beginning.

His reputation for putting in long hours and being totally devoted to his vocation is as evident now as ever. He's intent on building a championship team in Portland.

Since Schuler's first day on the job, the theme in the Blazer camp has centered around preparation and defense. It appears to be a formula for success as Portland's 49-33 record last season matched the second-best ledger in the club's 17-year history.

Schuler learned his craft as an understudy to some of the best minds in basketball and served as a head coach in the college ranks for seven years. Prior to joining Don Nelson's staff at Milwaukee, he was initiated into the NBA as an assistant to Larry Brown with the New Jersey Nets.

A 1962 graduate of Ohio University, Schuler spent three years in high school coaching followed by a year with Bobby Knight's NIT-bound Army team in 1965. In 1966, he returned to his alma mater as assistant coach and helped direct the team to two Mid-American Conference titles and a trip to the National Invitation Tournament in three seasons.

From 1969 to 1972, Schuler was head coach at Virginia Military Institute, a job he shouldered at just 29 years of age. He left the school for a five-year stint as an assistant to Bill Gibson and then Terry Holland at Virginia from 1972 to 1977.

The head coaching position at Rice opened up in 1977 and Schuler answered the call to attempt to turn around a program that had never threatened to ascend to the top of the Southwest Conference. In four years at the Houston school, Schuler's Owls made steady progress. The 1980-81 team finished with a 12-15 mark and made tremendous strides toward respectability when it became the first Rice team ever to beat cross-town rival Houston and the first to defeat Texas at Austin. He was named Southwest Conference Co-Coach of the Year when Rice had its winningest season in a decade.

In 1981, Brown tapped Schuler to be his assistant at New Jersey. Schuler coached the Nets' Summer League team and compiled a 25-5 record. The team won the league title in 1981 and went on to the semifinals in 1982.

While many of these influences can be seen in Schuler's coaching style, he's his own man.

"I'm not Bobby Knight, and I'm not Don Nelson," Schuler said. "I have to coach the way I feel most comfortable. I don't think anybody can put as much pressure on me as I put on myself. I think our talent is almost as good as anybody's in the NBA. I do not plan not to succeed. This is one of the top franchises in the NBA."

Schuler earned his bachelor's degree at Ohio University in education. He has been known as a teacher and educator of the game, as evident through his popularity at basketball clinics and camps. Mike and his wife, Gloria, have two daughters, Kimberly and Kristin. He was born September 22, 1940 in Portsmouth, Ohio.

RICK ADELMAN

Rick Adelman, an original Trail Blazer and the club's first team captain, is in his fifth season as a Portland assistant coach.

Adelman joined Jack Ramsay's coaching staff in the fall of 1983 after a 10-year hiatus from Portland. He's become one of the most respected young assistants in the NBA in just four years.

"He's done an excellent job. We would not be where we are today without him," said Portland head coach Mike Schuler late last season. "He's really done a terrific job in game preparation. We always know exactly what the opposition is going to do."

"He's concerned about us as individuals," said Blazer center Sam Bowie. "And he helps you because he wants to do it, not because he wants credit for it."

A 6-2 guard in his playing days, Adelman was selected by Portland from San Diego in the expansion draft of 1970 and was the cover subject of Portland's first media guide. He was the team captain during the 1971-72 season, the first Blazer player given that responsibility (there was no captain in the initial season of 1970-71).

Adelman played three seasons with the Trail Blazers (1970-71 through 1972-73), averaging 9.8 points and 4.6 assists in 237 games. He set what then was a Portland record for assists in leading the club with 413 and a 5.2 average in 1971-72.

Overall, Adelman played in 462 regular-season games during a seven-year stint in the NBA that included stops in San Diego, Portland, Chicago, New Orleans and Kansas City-Omaha. He recorded 3,579 points (for a 7.7 average), earned 1,606 assists (for a 3.5 average) and shot .415 from the field and .713 from the foul line.

A graduate of St. Pius X High School in Downey, Calif., Adelman scored a school-record 1,415 points (an 18.6 average) in four collegiate seasons at Loyola. He earned a master's degree in history at the institution following his retirement from the NBA.

One year of work with Converse preceded Adelman's move to Salem, Ore., where he served as head coach at Chemeketa Community College for six seasons. His teams posted a 141-39 record, winning outright or sharing three Oregon community college championships and one Region 18 title.

Adelman and his wife, Mary Kay, have two daughters, Kathryn Mary, 16, and Laura, 11, and they have two sons, R.J., 14, and David, 6. Adelman was born June 16, 1946.

JACK SCHALOW

Jack Schalow is in his second season as assistant coach and chief scout for the Portland Trail Blazers.

A veteran of the collegiate coaching ranks and the Continental Basketball Association, Schalow utilizes his vast experience to serve the Blazers on the bench as well as on the road. He'll assist Coach Mike Schuler on the Portland bench until the college basketball season begins. Then, he'll scour campuses across the country in search of the best young talent that will maintain the Trail Blazers' position as one of the NBA's best young teams for years to come.

"Jack is a great asset to our coaching staff, Schuler said in naming his assistant. "I've known him for a long time, and he is an outstanding teacher with first rate college and professional coaching experience. He will become a big factor in the Trail Blazers' future."

Schalow has been a Blazer scout since December 1985. Prior to undertaking those duties, he was head coach of the Wyoming Wildcatters in the CBA. In the 1982-83 season, his first with the Wildcatters, Schalow guided the team to a runner-up finish in the league's Western Division in just the organization's first year of operation. Wyoming won the Western Division and went the distance in the CBA championship series before falling to the Albany Patroons in the final game. The 1984-85 season saw the Wildcatters win the Western Division regular season race but finish third in the division playoffs. In his three seasons at Wyoming, Schalow fashioned a 69-67 record and was runner-up for the CBA Coach-of-the-Year Award following the 1983-84 campaign.

The 48-year-old Schalow is widely noted at the collegiate level. A graduate of University of the Pacific, Schalow served as freshman coach at his alma mater in Stockton, Calif. His other head coaching assignment came at Morehead State in Kentucky. Schalow also served as assistant coach at Duke (with Hubie Brown), Louisiana State and Seattle University. Two of his five seasons at Seattle were as an assistant under Bucky Buckwalter, current Vice-President of Basketball Operations with the Blazers.

Jack, whose 25-year-old daughter Traci Ann is a graduate of Washington and 24-year-old son Terry is a graduate of Louisiana State, was recently married. He and his wife, Valda, and children, Bridger and Lanie, reside in their new home in southwest Portland.

MIKE SHIMENSKY

Mike Shimensky, trainer of the Los Angeles Clippers for the past six seasons, is in his first year serving the Trail Blazers in that capacity.

"Shimensky comes to us with the strongest possible recommendations," said Portland President Harry Glickman in making the announcement last June 3. "When Ron Culp (Blazer trainer the previous 13 seasons) informed me he was leaving I asked our team physician, Dr. Bob Cook, to research available trainers, and Mike came out with the highest possible marks."

The 40-year-old Shimensky spent more time in the Clippers' operation than any player, coach or front office personnel, joining the club in September of 1981 after nearly 10 years of training and sports clinic experience in the Phoenix area.

While in Phoenix, Shimensky, a native of Honolulu and a graduate of Central Washington University, was responsible for holding training seminars to benefit coaches, trainers and nurses and provide them with more insight into sports-related injuries while working with the Sports Medicine Clinic.

After earning a master's degree in athletic training at the University of Arizona in 1973, he served as that institution's assistant trainer, working with the basketball, football and track teams. In the same capacity, he provided his services to Phoenix area high schools and junior colleges as needed.

Mike and his wife, Roberta, have two young boys, Daniel and Andrew.

Will it feel as good as it looks?

When planning a new home, you'll probably spend a lot of time and effort making sure it looks good.

Don't overlook making sure it feels good.

Plan it with a heat pump. It's the most effective way to make your new home feel good year-round. Because the heat pump does more than just heat. It also cools. Efficiently. And economically.

So insist on a heat pump with your builder. It's one building decision that will make you feel good inside.

SAM BOWIE

NUMBER: 31
HEIGHT: 7'1"
WEIGHT: 240 lbs.
POSITION: Center
BIRTHDATE: March 17, 1961 — Lebanon, PA.
HIGH SCHOOL: Lebanon High School
COLLEGE: Kentucky 1984
RESIDENCE: Lexington, KY.
HOW ACQUIRED: Drafted in 1984, 1st round, 2nd selection.

1986-87 SEASON — Missed all but the first five games after breaking his right tibia November 7 versus Dallas. . . Surgery then, and later in March, dashed initial hopes that Bowie could return before season's end. . . Scored a career-high 31 points at Utah and collected a season-high 16 rebounds at Golden State. . . Off-season rehabilitation and a thorough weight program has resulted in a return to health and the addition of size and strength.

PROFESSIONAL CAREER — Bowie missed 48 games two seasons ago following surgery to correct a defect in his left tibia and the removal of bone spurs from the base of his big toe. . . During the 1985-86 campaign, Portland posted a 20-18 record with Bowie on the floor and was 21-27 during his absence, which included the playoffs. . . Named to the NBA All-Rookie Team following the 1984-85 season, Bowie led the Blazers in rebounds with 8.6 a game, shot .537 from the field and finished third in the league in blocked shots with a 2.67 average.

COLLEGE CAREER — In three seasons with Kentucky, Bowie played in 96 of a possible 97 games, averaging 13.4 points and 8.8 rebounds. . . Led the Wildcats in rebounding as a senior with a 9.2 average and was third in scoring with 10.5 points a game, while starting all 34 games, guiding Kentucky to the NCAA Final Four. . . Missed the 1981-82 and 1982-83 seasons while recovering from a stress fracture of his left shin bone. . . Member of the 1980 Olympic Team that did not play in Moscow. . . Bowie was the National High School Coaches Association Player of the Year the same year Ralph Sampson was a prep senior.

PERSONAL — Bowie has become increasingly involved in the sport of harness racing, and owns several standardbreds. . . Bowie married his wife, Heidi, on June 28, 1986. . . He majored in communications at Kentucky, is interested in the broadcast industry and worked several Blazer telecasts last season.

WE'VE SCORED BIG WITH THIS ONE.

It's Horizon Air's all-new Boeing-de Havilland Dash 8 prop jet. It's in a league by itself.

The Dash 8 carries 37 passengers. It's fast, stable and incredibly dependable. And it's as quiet as a loser's locker room. The wide-body design is spacious and comfortable, with leg room for a lineman and enough enclosed overhead storage for all his gear.

Horizon's Dash 8. We have a whole team of them serving the great cities of the Northwest

See your Travel Agent or call Horizon toll-free (800) 547-9308.

The Dash 8. It'll score with you.

HENRY WEINHARD

Henry Weinhard
Brewmaster, No. 1, 5'10", 171 lbs.
Born: 1830, Wurtemburg, Germany
High School: Wurtemburg Area
College: Brewers apprentice

At the age of 22, and after years of apprenticeship, a talented Henry Weinhard decided he was ready for the major leagues. Upon surveying his options, Henry determined the best opportunity for a rookie such as him was in America.

In 1852 he came to the United States and immediately found a berth with the brewers in Cincinati, Ohio. He spent four years with this team polishing his skills.

As a free agent, he was intrigued by reports concerning bright openings on the Pacific coast. So early in 1856 he made the long voyage, via the isthmus, to the far west and hooked up with a Vancouver, Washington organization where he plied his trade for six months.

He then felt the time was right to make his move, so, in 1856, he established his own brewery near Fort Vancouver. It wasn't long before soldiers, loggers and trappers of the area became very big Henry Weinhard fans.

In 1860 he moved his operations to its present location on Burnside in Portland. From then on, Henry chalked up an enviable record of victories. He kept acquiring more equipment and adding more facilities to constantly increase his output while stubbornly maintaining the high level of excellence he had become known for. Everywhere along the coast Weinhard's beer was recognized as unsurpassed by any other native product.

Henry's experience and foresight prompted him to locate in Portland because he realized this area would eventually become the primary source of premium brewing ingredients in the United States. Time has proven him right.

Rare, two-row malting barley, for example, is grown in very few areas of the country, but Oregon's Klamath Basin is the most prominent. And the unique Cascade hops—which Henry recognized as being equal if not superior to the exalted Hallertau hop of Bavaria are raised here in Oregon.

Today, two labels continue in the proud, teutonic tradition set forth by Henry Weinhard 124 years ago. The perennial hometown favorite, Blitz-Weinhard, and the handmade, ultra-premium that is his namesake, Henry Weinhard's Private Reserve.

Trailblazer fans can expect a lot of good things from both of them this season. Again.

Does your group insurance company move quickly when you call?

If your medical claims representative spends more time going out for lunch than he spends going out of his way for you, you have the wrong group insurance plan. You need the ODS Health Plan. Because your satisfaction is our first priority.

Our programs are simple to understand and to use. But if a question arises, we're there when you need us. We give prompt, courteous answers to all of your employees' inquiries – usually right over the phone. In fact, we answer more than 80% of our clients' questions on the very first call. And we're also speedy in handling claims.

What's more, we do a service review at least once a year on every account. It's a chance for us to work with you to make sure we're doing everything we can to keep you completely satisfied.

We also provide you with detailed health plan reports which show exactly how your premium dollar is being spent. So you can make informed decisions on cost savings and/or program enhancements.

If you're interested in getting quality service as well as quality coverage, call us at 228-6554, Ext. 1121. We'll be there.

DOCTOR CALLS ON PATIENT AT COLISEUM.

When Dr. L.S. Caspersen of Portland is on call, he's never far from a phone. As an obstetrician, his practice includes future Trailblazer fans born with a lot of questions.

Wisely, he has made himself immediately available even when he's enjoying a game.

Dr. Caspersen simply registers with Security when he enters the Coliseum. Then when a call comes in, Security notifies the Cellular One Courtesy Agent, who delivers the mobile phone to the doctor.

This service is available to anyone who hates to waste time. If you'd like to enjoy this convenience, give us a call at 243-3333.

You could be using your time as well as Dr. Caspersen uses his. Because now he doesn't waste a minute getting to the lobby or waiting for a pay phone.

It's a good thing, too. Some of his patients just can't wait to talk to him.

Portland has a history of carrying players whose first names begin with a 'K' or 'hard C' sound. The roster includes Kevin, Kenny, Kiki, Clyde, Caldwell, Ken, Calvin, Carl, Kelvin, Kermit, Clemon, Kim, Corky and Claude.

YEARLY MILESTONES

Feb. 6, 1970 Portland is granted an NBA franchise at a meeting of the board of governors in Los Angeles. Herman Sarkowsky, Robert Shmertz and Lawrence Weinberg are principle owners. Harry Glickman, who led the drive for a franchise, is executive vice president and general manager.

Feb. 20, 1970 Stu Inman is named Portland's first chief scout to prepare for the college draft.

March 13, 1970 At a New York-Seattle game in Memorial Coliseum, Trail Blazers is announced as the name of Portland's new NBA team after a contest that drew almost 10,000 entries.

March 23, 1970 Geoff Petrie of Princeton becomes the first college draft selection of the Trail Blazers.

April 21, 1970 Rolland Todd from University of Nevada at Reno is named first coach of the Trail Blazers.

May 11, 1970 LeRoy Ellis of Baltimore is the first draft selection by Portland in the expansion draft.

June 27, 1970 The Trail Blazers play in Memorial Coliseum for the first time, the Reds vs. the Whites in a rookie game. Ron Knight scores 34 points and Geoff Petrie 30 for the Reds, but their team loses, 142-136.

July 1, 1970 Bill Schonely is named the first broadcaster of Trail Blazer games on the radio.

Sept. 24, 1970 The Blazers play their first pre-season game before 2,800 fans in Longview, Wash., and lose, 119-118, to San Francisco. Stan McKenzie and Jim Barnett lead Portland with 23 points each, and Gary Gregor hauls in 21 rebounds. Darrell Garretson and Manny Gomes referee.

Sept. 26, 1970 The Blazers win their first pre-season game, 116-113, over San Francisco in Roseburg. Geoff Petrie scores 22 points and Gary Gregor has 18 rebounds.

Oct. 16, 1970 The Blazers beat Cleveland, 115-112, in their first counting NBA game before 4,273 fans in Memorial Coliseum. Honored guests include NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy, Gov. Tom McCall and Portland mayor Terry Schrunk.

Oct. 23, 1970 The Blazers are on television for the first time, Jimmy Jones of KPTV describing a 111-141 loss in Seattle.

Nov. 8, 1970 The Blazers draw their first Memorial Coliseum crowd of more than 10,000 as 10,259 turn out for a game with the New York Knicks.

Nov. 17, 1970 The smallest crowd in Portland history, 1,973, watches the Blazers play Buffalo on a Tuesday.

Nov. 21, 1970 Portland records its first road victory, defeating Buffalo, 112-108, in a double-header in Seattle.

1971

Apr. 24, 1987 Mike Schuler is honored as NBA Coach of the Year, the first Blazer head coach to earn the Red Auerbach Trophy.

PORTLAND YEARLY ATTENDANCE

For the 11th straight season, the Portland Trail Blazers were sold out in 1986-87 for all 43 home games, 41 during the regular campaign and two in the playoffs.

This stretched Portland's record for consecutive sellouts for regular-season and playoff action to 443.

It's an all-time National Basketball Association record.

A sellout in Portland is 12,666.

The last time the Blazers failed to sell out was on April 5, 1977, when a crowd of 12,359 turned out for a game with Detroit.

In Portland's first 17 NBA seasons, the Blazers have drawn 7,733,724 fans for 695 regular season games. That's an average of 11,128 a contest.

For 726 regular-season and playoff games, the Blazers have drawn 8,128,211 fans for an average of 11,196 a contest.

In 41 regular-season road games in 1986-87, Portland played before 473,973 fans — an average of 11,560 a contest.

For the entire regular season, home and road, attendance was 993,279 for Portland games, an average of 12,113 a contest.

TAKE STEINFELD'S TO COURT.

Or to a picnic.
Or even out to your back yard.
Take Steinfeld's anywhere you want to enjoy a great hometown, homegrown taste.
Because, for over 60 years, Steinfeld's has been making a long line of quality pickles, sauerkraut, relish and mustard.

All with the taste, zest, and crunch that brings the fans to their feet.
And has made Steinfeld's the winning team.
But you be the judge.

BLAZERS vs. ATLANTA — Game-by-Game 1986-87

BLAZERS 98, HAWKS 93, February 15, 1987, At Portland (Game 52, 31-21)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
26-26	22-18	31-25	19-24	98-93	12,666

A physical, defensive-oriented game in which each team shot only 43.4 percent from the field and turned the ball over 17 times, it was won by the Blazers at the free throw line when they sunk six straight foul shots in the final 32 seconds. . . Portland led, 91-82, with 5:37 remaining before the Hawks ran off nine straight points to tie the score with 2:51 left. . . Trailing 93-92 with 32 seconds showing, Portland's Jim Paxson put his team ahead for good with a pair of free throws. . . Kiki Vandeweghe earned defensive plaudits for his work on Dominique Wilkins, holding the Hawk to a 9 of 22 shooting effort on the evening and just four first-half points. . . Vandeweghe led all scorers with 27 points.

HAWKS 123, BLAZERS 102, February 28, 1987, At Atlanta (Game 59, 36-23)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
25-34	21-29	22-34	34-26	102-123	16,522

Portland finished a tough 4-games-in-5-nights road trip with a loss at Atlanta. . . The Hawks jumped to a 40-29 lead, built it to 50-31, and led 63-46 at halftime. . . The margin stretched to 29, 97-68, after three quarters as Atlanta converted 26 Trail Blazer turnovers into 25 points, while managing to throw the ball away just six times itself. . . Center Steve Johnson went down in the second quarter with a slightly sprained right ankle and missed the rest of the contest. . . Atlanta was paced by 25 points from Dominique Wilkins and 24 from Kevin Willis, while Portland was led by Kiki Vandeweghe's 19 points and Michael Holton's season-high 16 points.

1986-87 SERIES CAPSULE

PORTLAND

The Blazers made the most of a 90-73 rebounding edge, and a .846 (55-65) free throw percentage, to offset poor shooting from the floor in the two-game series. Portland hit .423 from the field, despite a strong contribution from Jerome Kersey (.591/13-22). The Blazer starting five of Terry Porter, Kiki Vandeweghe, Clyde Drexler, Steve Johnson and Caldwell Jones combined to shoot .394 (41-104) in the series. Jones collected 18 rebounds, 16 on the defensive end, to lead Portland's board dominance.

ATLANTA

Doc Rivers, who distributed 20 assists in the 1985-86 series, recorded 26 in this pair of bouts, including a series single-game record of 17 in the second meeting. The Hawks committed just 27 turnovers and forced the Blazers into 44 (matching the highest total for Portland against an Eastern Conference opponent during the season). Atlanta held Portland to a 100.0 scoring average, the stingiest defensive effort the Blazers encountered all season.

BLAZERS vs. BOSTON—Game-by-Game 1986-87

CELTICS 131, BLAZERS 116, February 13, 1987, At Portland (Game 51, 30-21)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
34-34	30-34	22-32	30-31	116-131	12,666

Cold shooting plagued Portland, which dominated just about every statistical area except field goal percentage and the final score. . . The Blazers shot .426 (43-101) from the floor to the Celtics' .567 (56-97), off-setting a 62-41 rebounding margin (including a 29-8 edge at the offensive end) and a 14-point edge at the free throw line. . . Kevin McHale was virtually unstoppable, hitting 14 of 19 from the floor and all 9 free throw attempts en route to posting 37 points in 39 minutes, while Larry Bird fell just shy of a triple-double with 22 points, 13 assists and 9 rebounds. . . Steve Johnson paced Portland with 25 points and 14 rebounds, while Caldwell Jones added 13 points and 14 rebounds.

CELTICS 122, BLAZERS 116, February 25, 1987, At Boston (Game 57, 35-22)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
33-32	28-23	27-33	28-34	116-122	14,890

Portland led 76-67 with 6:01 to play in the third quarter before Larry Bird, who led all scorers with 43 points, ran off seven straight points to help pull the Celtics into an 88-88 deadlock after entering the fourth period. . . Boston scored on 12 of its first 14 possessions in the final quarter to repel a Portland stretch that saw the Blazers make seven straight shots from the floor and draw to within 110-107 with 3:16 remaining. . . Portland shot .549 (50-91) from the floor and committed only 10 turnovers, but lost the rebounding battle, 45-29. . . Terry Porter returned after missing a game due to a bruised thigh and set a Blazer assist high in the all-time series with Boston with 13 distributions.

1986-87 SERIES CAPSULE

PORTLAND

Steve Johnson registered a season-high average of 29.5 points in the series, shooting .590 (23-39) from the floor. He grabbed 19 rebounds to go along with the 20 caroms collected by Caldwell Jones. Terry Porter's 13 assists in the second encounter was the most ever by a Blazer in the all-time series with Boston.

BOSTON

The Celtics racked up 102 field goals in the two games, including a series-record of 56 in game one. The hot hands belonged to Kevin McHale (66 points on 25-36/.694 shooting) and Larry Bird (65 points on 28-53/.528 shooting). McHale converted all 16 of his free throw attempts and Dennis Johnson was perfect in 12 trips to the line as the team poster a .917 (44-48) free throw percentage. Bird, who shot .400 (90-225) from 3-point range on the year, was 1 of 8 versus the Blazers.

BLAZERS vs. CHICAGO — Game-by-Game 1986-87

BULLS 121, BLAZERS 117, January 8, 1987, At Chicago (Game 35, 21-14)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
29-27	33-28	31-33	24-33	117-121	11,033

Michael Jordan scored 53 points, his best-ever homecourt effort, to boost the Bulls to a come-from-behind victory. . . Portland led, 101-98, with 7:28 remaining before Chicago got hot, scoring on 11 of 12 possessions during one stretch. . . The Bulls hit 25 of 39 field goal attempts in the second half and led by as many as eight, 119-111, with less than two minutes left. . . The Blazers enjoyed some hot shooting themselves, converting their first nine shots in the second quarter and building a lead as large as 60-45 before intermission. . . The Blazers, who lost Kenny Carr with a thigh bruse just six minutes into the contest, finished with a .547 shooting percentage but were outrebounded, 48-36.

BLAZERS 115, BULLS 113, March 22, 1987, At Portland (Game 68, 42-26)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
27-36	29-25	23-25	36-27	115-113	12,666

Portland outscored Chicago, 14-7, and shut out Michael Jordan in the final four minutes to squeeze out the victory. . . Jordan, who hit 18 of 20 from the foul line en route to scoring 46 points, was held scoreless after the Blazers switched point guard Terry Porter over to guard him down the stretch. . . A 20-4 run by Chicago put the Bulls in front, 36-27, after the first quarter and they led by as many as 13, 82-69, with 2:51 remaining in the third period. . . Portland crept back and caught Chicago at 111-110 with two minutes left, built the margin to 115-110, and held on for the triumph. . . The Blazers matched the Bulls, the league's top rebounding team, on the boards with 33 retrieves each. . . Portland shot .595 (44-74) from the floor and was fueled by Kiki Vandeweghe's 28 points and Steve Johnson's 24.

PORTLAND

The Blazers fired at a .569 (91-160) clip from the floor, their best percentage in a series during the season. Kiki Vandeweghe's 35 points in the first meeting was the best effort ever in regulation for a Portland player against Chicago. He hit .605 (23-38) from the floor and 1.000 (17-17) at the free throw line. Steve Johnson was 18-25 (.720) from the floor and led the team's rebounding effort with 20 retrieves. Clyde Drexler had his toughest series of the year at the line, converting just 10 of 23 (.435), but still averaged 23.0 points.

CHICAGO

Michael Jordan set four all-time series highs, posting 53 points, 20 field goals, 18 free throws made and 20 free throw attempts. In the two games, Jordan shot .567 (34-60) from the field and .861 (31-36) at the foul stripe. Charles Oakley grabbed 30 rebounds to lead the Bulls to an 81-69 margin on the boards. John Paxson tallied 17 assists but managed just six field goals in 70 minutes of playing time.

BLAZERS vs. CLEVELAND — Game-by-Game 1986-87

CAVELIERS 118, BLAZERS 114, November 26, 1986, At Cleveland (Game 15, 7-8)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
22-23	39-33	29-37	24-25	114-118	8,981

The Blazers were held without a field goal in the final 3:28 of the game to aid Cleveland in overcoming a late 113-110 deficit and salvage the homecourt victory. . . Portland overcame an early Cavalier lead and recorded a 56-46 edge with two minutes left in the first half. . . Steve Johnson scored a career-high 40 points, including a 16 of 17 effort from the foul line, and grabbed 10 rebounds to fuel the Trail Blazers. . . Clyde Drexler added 23 points and Kiki Vandeweghe 21, but no other Portland player reached double digits. . . Rookies John Williams and Ron Harper each tallied 20 points to pace Cleveland, which snapped a seven-game losing streak.

1986-87 SERIES CAPSULE

PORTLAND

Portland recorded five series records and an all-time team record. Terry Porter's eight assists in one quarter of game four was the most any Trail Blazer has ever distributed in a quarter. The team totalled 163 assists (compared to the Mavs' 124). The Blazers also enjoyed a 241-217 field goal margin and a 234-218 rebounding edge. The Portland backcourt trio of Clyde Drexler, Jim Paxson and Terry Porter converted .932 (41-44) from the foul line. Kenny Carr averaged 12.3 rebounds in four games and nabbed a series-record and career-high 21 in game three.

DALLAS

Mark Aguirre, who averaged 25.7 points a game on the year, registered a 30.4 average in the five-game series. Derek Harper shot just .382 (26-68) from the field but averaged 9.0 assists, including a series-record 15 in one outing. James Donaldson collected 18 rebounds in one game, but averaged only 5.0 rebounds in the other four encounters. Dallas reserves Detlef Schrempf (11-43), Roy Tarpley (10-30) and Al Wood (7-30) combined to shoot .272 from the floor, offsetting a .509 (171-336) effort by the starting unit.

1986-87 SERIES CAPSULE

PORTLAND

The Trail Blazers dominated the boards, 241-211, and tallied a 146-118 advantage at the free throw line. Kenny Carr, in three games, shot .688 (11-16) from the field and .875 (14-16) at the line. Terry Porter converted 19 of 21 (.905) at the free throw stripe, and posted a series record in overtime games with 16 assists in game four. Portland's 145 points in the fourth game was the club's high-point mark on the year. Denver's 142 points in the fifth encounter were the most surrendered by the Blazer defense all season, surpassing the 141 the Nuggets scored in game four.

DENVER

The Nuggets averaged 130.2 points in the five games, the highest average posted against Portland during the season. They got up 523 field goal attempts, compared to Portland's 459, and set a series record with 118 field goal attempts in overtime in game four. Lafayette Lever, who averaged 18.9 points a game on the year, yielded 21.6 in five matchups with the Blazers. He also averaged 7.4 rebounds, 6.2 assists and 3.80 steals in the series. Lever's 25-27 (.926) effort at the foul line was the best showing all year by a Portland opponent. Blair Rasmussen totalled 26 rebounds in 69 minutes during the series, shooting .667 (18-27) from the field and .810 (17-21) at the foul line. He also totalled 26 personal fouls. Alex English, who averaged 28.6 points a game all season, produced a 23.0 average versus Portland.

BLAZERS vs. DETROIT — Game-by-Game 1986-87

BLAZERS 123, PISTONS 111, February 27, 1987, At Detroit (Game 58, 36-22)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
29-24	29-23	32-31	33-33	123-111	26,833

An outstanding Portland defensive effort stifled Detroit to just a .375 (39-104) shooting performance. . . Caldwell Jones limited Adrian Dantley to a 6 of 13 shooting effort and 17 points. . . Jones also grabbed 20 rebounds in 30 minutes of playing time. . . Portland allowed Bill Laimbeer just six points, Rick Mahorn four, and Sidney Green 10. . . The Blazers earned 14 free throws in the final 2½ minutes but still totaled 38 attempts to the Pistons' 45. . . A Detroit run of 11 straight points drew the hosts to within 100-95 with 3:40 remaining before an offensive rebound and converted turnover helped boost the margin up to 105-95 at the 3:21 mark. . . Kiki Vandeweghe tallied a game-high 35 points for Portland, while Isiah Thomas needed 31 field goal attempts to lead his team with 34 points.

Terry Porter, fouled by Isiah Thomas near midcourt, converted a pair of free throws with two seconds remaining to give the Trail Blazers a 113-111 conquest and season series sweep over Detroit. . . The victory meant that Portland would be the only team in the league that Detroit failed to defeat during the season. . . Portland led 110-106 with 27 seconds to play but a Piston rally, capped by a 3-point field goal from center Bill Laimbeer, knotted the score at 111 with three seconds left, setting up Porter's heroics. . . It was the 17th straight loss for Detroit at Memorial Coliseum. . . Clyde Drexler paced Portland with 29 points, and Kiki Vandeweghe added 28. . . Thomas' 26 points led Detroit.

PORTLAND

Caldwell Jones collected 28 rebounds, including a season-high 20 in game one, and recorded a 14.0 scoring average in the two-game series—his best showing in a series during the season. Terry Porter averaged a season-best 8.0 rebounds and converted all 14 of his free throw attempts. Clyde Drexler had his second-best scoring average in a season series with a 29.0 marking. Steve Johnson fouled out of both contests.

DETROIT

Isiah Thomas was nearly 10 points better than his season average, scoring 30.0 points in the series. Sidney Green collected 17 rebounds in just 41 minutes of playing time as Detroit outrebounded the Trail Blazers, 99-90. The Piston offense shot just .434 (82-189) from the field, the poorest showing by a Portland opponent during the season. Rick Mahorn (2-12), Joe Dumars (2-9) and Vinnie Johnson (13-37) experienced the poorest shooting in the series.

BLAZERS vs. GOLDEN STATE — Game-by-Game 1986-87

WARRIORS 102, BLAZERS 92, November 5, 1986, At Oakland (Game 4, 0-4)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
20-20	26-24	20-27	26-31	92-102	7,717

Poor shooting, .457 for Golden State and .415 for Portland, plagued both teams as Portland's record fell to 0-4 in the young campaign. . . Golden State improved to 3-1, the first time in three years the Warriors had been two games over the .500 mark.

BLAZERS 126, WARRIORS 108, November 11, 1986, At Portland (Game 7, 2-5)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
31-27	36-31	28-29	31-21	126-108	12,666

Portland, leading 95-87, forced Golden State turnovers on the first five possessions of the final quarter to help extend its lead as high as 113-94 with 7:39 to go in the contest. . . Kiki Vandeweghe led all scorers with 29 points, and Steve Johnson notched his first double-double in a Blazer uniform with 22 points and 11 rebounds. The Blazers committed just four turnovers in the first half.

WARRIORS 112, BLAZERS 111, December 23, 1986, At Oakland (Game 29, 17-12)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
30-27	20-31	24-24	37-30	111-112	9,402

Trailing 112-109 with seven seconds left, Terry Porter neglected a three-point attempt for a layin and Golden State held on for the victory. . . Portland led for the last time at 106-105, but a three-point play by Eric Floyd put the Warriors ahead for good.

WARRIORS 116, BLAZERS 103, January 18, 1987, At Portland (Game 40, 24-16)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
28-30	32-24	24-29	19-33	103-116	12,666

A 13-2 Warrior run erased an 82-70 Portland lead late in the third quarter and poor Blazer shooting (6 of 25 from the field) in the final period enabled Golden State to seize the victory on the road. . . It snapped a 15-game Blazer winning streak at Memorial Coliseum, dating back to Dec. 8, 1981, in the series history. . . Portland shot .421 (40-94) from the floor on the evening, compared to the Warriors' .512 (42-82).

BLAZERS 119, WARRIORS 108, March 15, 1987, At Portland (Game 64, 39-25)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
30-32	33-26	28-25	28-25	119-108	12,666

Portland started slowly, just one point in the first 3½ minutes, and needed 10 possessions to tally their first field goal. . . Still, the Blazers shot .565 (48-85) from the floor and held Golden State to just .432 (41-95).

WARRIORS 125, BLAZERS 124, March 19, 1987, At Oakland (Game 66, 40-26)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
29-21	24-32	32-34	39-38	124-125	10,241

The Trail Blazers rallied from a 122-115 deficit with 1:03 to play and had the ball with 14 seconds left, behind 125-124. . . Joe Barry Carroll rejected a Steve Johnson shot, however, as time ran out. . . Golden State owned the boards, 53-36, claiming 23 rebounds at the offensive end. . . Portland outshot the hosts, .537 (44-82) to .462 (43-93).

1986-87 SERIES CAPSULE

PORTLAND

The Blazers' only statistical edge in the season series came in the field goal column where the club made 256 attempts to Golden State's 253. Six Blazers averaged within 2.0 points of their season scoring averages during the season. Jim Paxson was 1-11 (.090) from three-point distance in the six contests.

GOLDEN STATE

Three Warriors, Joe Barry Carroll (23.7), Purvis Short (22.0) and Eric Floyd (21.2) averaged more than 20 points during the series. Golden State squeezed out a 266-256 rebounding edge and matched the Blazers at the foul line with 157 successful attempts. Floyd averaged 11.0 assists, but converted just .686 (35-51) of his free throw attempts.

BLAZERS vs. HOUSTON — Game-by-Game 1986-87

BLAZERS 115, ROCKETS 111 (OT), November 18, 1986, At Houston (Game 10, 5-5)

1	2	3	4	(OT)	Final	Att.
27-30	24-19	23-32	29-22	(12-8)	115-111	16,016

Terry Porter's driving layin with three seconds left followed a pair of missed free throws by Mitchell Wiggins and sent the game into overtime. . . Down 111-109 with 1:01 remaining in overtime, Kiki Vandeweghe scored on a drive and then hit two foul shots with four seconds left to bring the Blazers from behind to pick up their first road victory of the season. . . Ralph Sampson left the game with an injured right ankle in the second quarter and Akeem Olajuwon fouled out with 7:32 to play in regulation.

BLAZERS 115, ROCKETS 112, December 19, 1986, At Portland (Game 27, 16-11)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
30-25	24-29	34-28	27-30	115-112	12,666

Steve Johnson registered 29 points and 13 rebounds in 41 minutes to guide the Trail Blazers to their ninth win in 11 outings. . . After fouling out Kareem Abdul-Jabbar the previous evening in Los Angeles, Johnson made short work of Akeem Olajuwon as the Houston center contributed just 10 points and 3 rebounds before fouling out after only 21 minutes. . . The Rockets scored on their first 11 possessions of the second half but led only 74-69 midway through the third period. . . Two Clyde Drexler free throws with four seconds remaining iced the victory for Portland, which led by as many as 11 in the final period.

BLAZERS 119, ROCKETS 93, March 8, 1987, At Portland (Game 62, 38-24)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
32-26	22-23	27-19	38-25	119-93	12,666

The Blazer defense held Houston to .452 (38-84) shooting, while the offense hit .522 (48-92) to better the 50 percent mark for the eighth time in the last nine outings. . . Akeem Olajuwon was limited to 12 points and 10 rebounds in 37 minutes before being ejected for throwing an elbow. . . Houston played without the injured Ralph Sampson.

ROCKETS 119, BLAZERS 104, March 26, 1987, At Houston (Game 70, 42-28)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
21-28	30-25	33-36	20-30	104-119	16,279

Rookies Dave Feitl (10 points) and Buck Johnson (seven points) ignited a fourth-quarter flurry that broke open a three-point game and brought Houston its first triumph in the season series. . . Robert Reid scored 21 of his season-high 30 points in the third quarter to carry Houston to a lead as large as 105-89. . . Feitl finished with a career-high 17 points. . . Portland shot .429 (36-84) from the field and lost the board battle, 51-34.

ROCKETS 114, BLAZERS 108, April 6, 1987, At Portland (Game 75, 45-30)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
30-31	30-26	25-23	23-34	108-114	12,666

Portland was victimized by a .316 (6-19) shooting percentage in the fourth quarter, while Houston was firing at a .579 (11-19) rate and winning the rebounding wars, 42-33. . . Ralph Sampson left the game early in the second quarter with an ankle injury. . . Leading 85-78 with 21 seconds left in the third quarter, the Blazers went the next 6:16 without a field goal and fell behind 95-87 with 7:36 remaining in the contest. . . Portland crept to within 98-97 with 4:59 to go before six Houston points settled the issue.

1986-87 SERIES CAPSULE

PORTLAND

The Trail Blazers utilized a 149-104 advantage at the foul line to overcome a 218-202 deficit in field goals made and a 218-205 rebounding deficit. Kevin Duckworth averaged 11.3 points in three games of the season series, more than twice his season scoring average of 5.4 points. Portland hit .810 from the foul line, led by a 31-33 performance by Kiki Vandeweghe. Terry Porter recorded shooting percentages of .571 (20-35) from the floor and .867 (26-30) at the foul stripe.

HOUSTON

Robert Reid, who averaged 13.7 points on the year, throttled the Blazers with a 24.3 per game average in four games of the season series. Akeem Olajuwon averaged 4.6 blocked shots and led the Rockets with 13 steals (2.60) in five outings, despite picking up 26 personal fouls. Reid's backcourt teammates, Allen Leavell, Steve Harris and Mitchell Wiggins combined to shoot .367 (29-79) from the field. Ralph Sampson, limited to three games because of injury, averaged 23.7 minutes, 15.3 points, and shot .677 (21-31) from the field.

BLAZERS vs. INDIANA — Game-by-Game 1986-87

BLAZERS 108, PACERS 95, November 23, 1986, At Portland (Game 13, 7-6)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
28-27	25-20	24-24	31-24	108-95	12,666

Caldwell Jones sparked a 19-2 outburst to open the fourth quarter and spur Portland to a strong victory, spoiling the homecoming of former Blazer coach Jack Ramsay. . . Jones contributed 10 rebounds, eight points and four blocked shots, while playing a key defensive role that helped hold Indiana to .384 (38-99) shooting on the night. . . The Blazers outrebounded the Pacers 48-43 and scored 21 points off just 12 Indiana turnovers (while surrendering only 11 points off 19 turnovers of their own). . . Portland rejected 13 Indiana field goal attempts. . . Wayman Tisdale paced all scorers with 25 points as the Pacers' sixth-man, and Kiki Vandeweghe fueled Portland with 23 points.

BLAZERS 118, PACERS 101, November 30, 1986, At Indiana (Game 17, 8-9)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
31-29	18-23	24-27	45-22	118-101	8,397

Portland ripped off nine straight and 13 of 15 points early in the fourth quarter to break open a tight game and roll to a season series sweep of Indiana. . . The Blazers converted all 30 of their free throw attempts in the contest, the second-best performance at the line in NBA history. . . The victory snapped a three-game losing streak and extended the Blazers' string of victories in the all-time series with Indiana to a record seven straight. . . Kiki Vandeweghe gunned in 30 points to pace Portland, and Clyde Drexler contributed 26 points and 14 assists. . . Rookie-of-the-Year Chuck Person yielded 22 points to lead his team, followed by Herb Williams' 21 points and eight rebounds.

PORTLAND

The Blazers' 30-30 effort at the free throw line in game two was the second-best performance at the foul line in NBA history. The team was .899 (62-69) from the line in the series. Kiki Vandeweghe was 24-40 (.600) from the floor and his 15 successful field goal attempts in game two was a series record. Clyde Drexler posted season highs of 14 assists and eight steals at Indiana. Steve Johnson's 10.5 rebound average was his highest series average of the year.

INDIANA

The Pacers were held to a 98.0 scoring average by the Blazer defense, the lowest series average by a Portland opponent during the season. Rookie Chuck Person hit 19 of 32 (.594) from the floor en route to a 19.5 scoring average, collecting only three personal fouls in 78 minutes of playing time. Steve Stipanovich hauled down 18 rebounds in the two matchups. Vern Fleming was just 1-11 (.090) from the field, and John Long was held to a 14-38 (.368) shooting performance. Indiana was 0-7 from three-point land.

BLAZERS vs. L.A. CLIPPERS — Game-by-Game 1986-87

BLAZERS 119, CLIPPERS 109, November 14, 1986, At Portland (Game 8, 3-5)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
37-23	26-26	28-31	28-29	119-109	12,666

Portland built a 63-49 halftime lead on the strength of a 33-10 rebounding edge (Kenny Carr contributing for 14 retrieves of his own) and a .556 to .442 edge in shooting. . . The Blazers finished with a 62-28 rebounding advantage, but were slowed by 27 turnovers. . . Clyde Drexler picked up his first triple-double of the season in the first three quarters, finishing with 24 points, 12 rebounds and 11 assists.

BLAZERS 134, CLIPPERS 99, December 2, 1986, At Portland (Game 18, 9-9)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
32-30	26-16	38-33	28-20	134-99	12,666

Los Angeles played without Marques Johnson, Norm Nixon, Larry Drew, Rory White and Benoit Benjamin because of injuries and dropped their 10th straight bout. . . Portland outrebounded Los Angeles 53-33 and committed just 14 turnovers.

BLAZERS 113, CLIPPERS 112, December 12, 1986, At Los Angeles (Game 23, 13-10)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
34-22	31-27	20-36	28-27	113-112	6,627

A rare 4-point play by Kiki Vandeweghe pulled Portland from a 108-105 deficit into a 109-108 lead with 1:42 to play but a Darnell Valentine layin kept the Clippers in front, 112-111, inside the last half-minute. . . Terry Porter's eight-footer put Portland on top with 16 seconds remaining and the Blazers survived a last-second desperation 21-footer by Valentine to cop the victory. . . The Blazers played much of the second half without Steve Johnson (ejected) and Clyde Drexler (ankle injury).

BLAZERS 110, CLIPPERS 105, February 16, 1987, At Los Angeles (Game 53, 32-21)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
28-16	28-26	32-31	22-32	110-105	7,415

Clyde Drexler, who finished with 36 points, nine rebounds, six assists, four blocked shots and six steals, sank a pair of free throws with five seconds left to insure the victory. . . Portland played with only eight players as starters Kiki Vandeweghe and Kenny Carr were both sidelined with back injuries.

BLAZERS 134, CLIPPERS 123, March 17, 1987, At Los Angeles (Game 65, 40-25)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
35-27	36-29	34-31	29-36	134-123	6,768

Kiki Vandeweghe scored 30 points, while Clyde Drexler, Terry Porter and Jerome Kersey each charted 21 as Portland rolled to another win. . . Lancaster Gordon responded with a career-high 33 points for the Clippers. . . Portland shot .534 (47-88) from the floor, outrebounded Los Angeles 47-37, and committed only 13 turnovers. . . The Clippers tallied only two steals and two blocked shots in the game.

BLAZERS 113, CLIPPERS 100, April 12, 1987, At Portland (Game 78, 47-31)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
28-26	32-18	27-29	26-27	113-100	12,666

Kiki Vandeweghe scored 29 points to surpass Geoff Petrie's single-season franchise scoring record of 2,031 points. . . Portland dominated the rebounding category by a tune of 51-36. . . Michael Cage recorded a double-double of 22 points and 11 rebounds to pace the Clippers.

PORTLAND

The Blazers dominated every statistical category, posting margins of 282-251 in field goals made, 152-137 in free throws made, 290-222 in rebounds, 201-136 in assists and 115.5-108.0 in scoring average. Jim Paxson averaged three points a game better in the series (15.7) than he did on the year, recording his highest scoring average against a Western Conference foe. Seven Blazers who averaged more than 22 minutes per game shot better than .500 from the field in the series.

LA CLIPPERS

Mike Woodson, the Clippers leading scorer during the season with a 17.1 average, tallied 23.4 per outing versus Portland. In his lone appearance against the Blazers, Marques Johnson yielded 22 points in 40 minutes. Kenny Fields, who averaged 8.2 points a game during the season, averaged 14.3 points in four games of the series, connecting on 25 of 43 (.581) field goal attempts. Sixteen Clippers played in the series, the largest contingent of any opponent Portland faced during the season.

BLAZERS vs. MILWAUKEE — Game-by-Game 1986-87

BLAZERS 103, BUCKS 91, January 11, 1987, At Milwaukee (Game 37, 23-14)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
31-16	23-25	22-24	27-26	103-91	11,052

Blazer defense caused poor Milwaukee shooting (.384 from the field) and they dominated the Bucks on the boards, out-rebounding the hosts 52-34 behind Kenny Carr's 18 retrieves. . . Portland led by 20, 49-29, during the second quarter before Milwaukee closed the gap to 54-41 at intermission. . . The Blazers shot 63 percent in the first period while holding the Bucks to a 30 percent success rate. . . The victory snapped a nine-game Portland losing streak at Milwaukee that dated to 1979. . . It was the Trail Blazers' seventh win in their last 11 road games. . . Portland played without Jim Paxson, who aggravated a back injury that morning. . . Kiki Vandeweghe, slowed by a bruised left shin managed to lead Portland with 32 points. . . Terry Cummings paced the Bucks with 23 points despite being harassed into 9 of 23 shooting from the field.

BLAZERS 124, BUCKS 120, February 22, 1987, At Portland (Game 55, 34-21)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
29-39	32-29	32-30	31-22	124-120	12,666

Portland erased Milwaukee leads of 17 points in the second quarter and six points with 2:18 remaining to salvage a first-ever season series sweep of the Bucks. . . Both teams shot well, Milwaukee .527 (48-91) and Portland .559 (47-84) and despite being outrebounded, 46-36, the Trail Blazers forced 20 turnovers and committed only 14. . . Two 3-point plays by Terry Porter put Portland in front 122-120 with 22 seconds to go and Clyde Drexler sealed the decision with a pair of free throws at the 11-second mark. . . John Lucas and Sidney Moncrief scored 19 points each to lead seven Bucks in double figure scoring. . . Drexler finished with 29 points, and Porter yielded 24 points and 17 assists. . . The victory extended Portland's winning streak to four games and halted a seven-game success string by the Bucks.

BLAZERS vs. NEW JERSEY — Game-by-Game 1986-87

BLAZERS 127, NETS 120 (OT) January 9, 1987, At New Jersey (Game 36, 22-14)

1	2	3	4	(OT)	Final	Att.
30-33	24-34	35-26	25-21	13-6	127-120	8,113

It was a game of comebacks as Portland surfaced from a 67-52 second-quarter hole and then saw a seven-point lead disappear in the final 2:39 of regulation. . . After jumping out to an 11-0 lead, Portland had the tables turned and trailed 33-30 after one quarter. . . The Blazers caught the Nets again at the 5:07 mark of the third period and led by as many as seven, 112-105, with 2:39 left. . . The Blazers converted just two of six free throw attempts in the final minute to allow New Jersey back in the contest. . . It was Portland's fourth overtime triumph of the season against no losses. . . Kenny Carr fought off a deep thigh bruise to score 17 points and grab a game-high 18 rebounds, and Steve Johnson converted 17 of 19 foul shots enroute to a team-high 29 points. . . Orlando Woolridge came off the bench to lead New Jersey with 30 points. . . The loss curtailed a six-game home winning streak for the Nets. . . The Blazers outrebounded New Jersey 53-44, 35-23 during the second half.

BLAZERS vs. NEW YORK — Game-by-Game 1986-87

BLAZERS 107, KNICKS 104, (OT) December 7, 1986, At Portland (Game 20, 11-9)

1	2	3	4	(OT)	Final	Att.
20-20	29-29	25-26	21-20	12-9	107-104	12,666

Leading 93-90 with 1:23 left, New York committed a costly turnover, fouled Clyde Drexler who converted two free throws and then missed two foul shots itself to open the door for a Blazer victory with 16 seconds to play in regulation. . . Drexler hit a 20-footer with eight seconds remaining, was fouled, and made the free throw to put the Blazers in front 95-93. . . A Gerald Henderson 15-foot buzzer beater sent the game into overtime. . . Kiki Vandeweghe's six points lifted Portland in the overtime session but the Blazers had to survive a pair of 3-point field goal attempts by Trent Tucker in the final 12 seconds. . . The contest featured 20 ties and 19 lead changes. . . The Blazers shot just .400 (38-95) from the field but limited the Knicks to a .463 (38-82) effort while outrebounding the more physical New York team, 48-45.

BLAZERS 122, KNICKS 109, February 24, 1987, At New York (Game 56, 35-21)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
32-21	31-24	31-26	28-38	122-109	12,666

Portland built a 63-45 halftime advantage into a 27-point lead in the third quarter and held off a late charge by New York. . . The Blazers were without injured Jim Paxson (ankle), Terry Porter (thigh bruise) and Kenny Carr (back spasms) but got big games out of Kiki Vandeweghe (34 points) and Clyde Drexler (30 points, 11 assists). . . Portland started Michael Holton, who responded with 10 points and eight assists, and received 22 minutes of playing time from Perry Young, a free agent guard signed the morning of the game. . . Jerome Kersey added 21 points and 12 rebounds. . . New York, which shot just .429 (42-98) from the field, was led by Patrick Ewing's 27 points and 10 rebounds. . . It was the eighth straight victory for Portland over New York, the longest stretch in series history.

PORTLAND

Clyde Drexler averaged more than six points better than his season scoring average with a 28.0 showing on the strength of 23-38 (.605) shooting from the floor and a 10-13 (.769) effort at the free throw line. Kenny Carr grabbed 18 rebounds in game one, his lone appearance in the season series. Steve Johnson (5-17/.294) and Jim Paxson (4-13/.308) struggled from the field. Portland shot .868 (59-68) from the foul line.

NEW YORK

Patrick Ewing's 30 field goal attempts in game two raised the series record. He also blocked 10 shots during the two encounters. Bill Cartwright set a series record with 15 successful free throws (in 16 attempts) in game one, his lone appearance in the season series. He also nabbed 10 rebounds. Rory Sparrow was 2-2 from three-point range, while the rest of the team was 0-9. Trent Tucker (3-10) and Gerald Henderson (7-19) combined to shoot .345 from the field.

BLAZERS vs. PHILADELPHIA — Game-by-Game 1986-87

SIXERS 125, BLAZERS 119, November 9, 1986, At Portland (Game 6, 1-5)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
37-35	21-24	29-34	32-32	119-125	12,666

Philadelphia, leading 105-95 with 6:21 remaining, withstood two Portland comebacks that cut the lead to three. . . Julius Erving, making his final appearance at Memorial Coliseum, sank 11 of 14 shots from the field to record 29 points. . . Kiki Vandeweghe registered 31 points to guide the Trail Blazers, who received 21 points and nine rebounds from reserve Jerome Kersey in his best showing of the young season. . . Both teams started fast, Portland hitting 15 of 22 shots (.682) from the floor and the Sixers answering with 15 of 23 (.652). . . Philadelphia was 46 of 56 from the foul stripe. . . The Sixers played without Charles Barkley and Jeff Ruland, while the Blazers were absent Jim Paxson and Sam Bowie—all injured.

SIXERS 116, BLAZERS 112, November 28, 1986, At Philadelphia (Game 16, 7-9)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
32-32	25-27	26-31	29-26	112-116	12,666

Charles Barkley engineered Philadelphia with 31 points, 21 rebounds, nine assists and seven blocked shots but Portland stayed alive by forcing 27 turnovers (to account for 34 points) while committing just 11 (for 13 points). . . Philadelphia's inside game helped to outrebound the Blazers by a 60-29 count with 24 retrieves coming at the offensive end. . . With Portland leading, 79-70, at the 4:52 point of the third quarter, the Sixers rattled off an 18-2 run, with Barkley pouring in nine points. . . Philadelphia's lead stretched to 96-85 before Portland narrowed the gap to 103-99 with just over five minutes remaining. . . A Roy Hinson dunk with seven seconds left kept the Blazers from getting any closer than 114-112. . . All five Portland starters scored in double figures, led by Kiki Vandeweghe's 22 points. . . It was the sixth consecutive triumph for Philadelphia over Portland, the longest winning streak for the Sixers in the series history.

BLAZERS vs. SEATTLE — Game-by-Game 1986-87

SONICS 127, BLAZERS 110, October 31, 1986, At Portland (Game 1, 0-1)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
30-29	33-29	21-37	26-32	110-127	12,666

Seattle fired at a sizzling .616 (53-86) rate and controlled the boards by a 37-25 margin, taking the game from Portland's grasp in the third quarter. . . During that 12-minute span, Seattle had nine different players score and eventually the Sonics lead grew to as large as 15 with 9:47 to play. . . Portland crept to within 103-99 but Seattle made the most of its free throw opportunities to stretch the margin back up to 116-101 with 3:37 left.

BLAZERS 126, SONICS 118, December 16, 1986, At Portland (Game 25, 15-10)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
31-31	38-27	21-40	36-20	126-118	12,666

Jerome Kersey scored a career-high 27 points and helped ignite a furious fourth quarter rampage that carried Portland to its eighth win in nine games. . . Portland's last nine points came at the foul line during the last 1:30.

BLAZERS 127, SONICS 118, December 28, 1986, At Seattle (Game 30, 18-12)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
32-32	27-37	36-25	32-24	127-118	9,365

The Trail Blazers opened the third period with eight straight points to wash away Seattle's halftime lead and finally went ahead, 95-94, at the close of the quarter. . . Xavier McDaniel hit 10 straight field goal attempts en route to posting 25 first-half points, and the Sonics committed just three turnovers in the first 24 minutes to gain the early advantage. . . Portland led 113-111 with 2:44 to play but scored nine of the game's next 11 points to insure the victory.

SONICS 127, BLAZERS 122, March 5, 1987 At Seattle (Game 61, 37-24)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
36-29	30-33	31-36	25-29	122-127	10,205

Trailing 123-122 with 1:16 to play, Portland turned the ball over and then was forced to foul, and the Sonics responded with four points to seal the win. . . Kiki Vandeweghe fired in a season-high 48 points, and Terry Porter posted a triple-double of 14 points, 11 rebounds and 10 assists.

BLAZERS 126, SONICS 123, April 4, 1987, At Seattle (Game 74, 45-29)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
32-37	28-28	42-29	24-29	126-123	12,227

A 123-120 Sonic lead with 1:11 left was eliminated by a Terry Porter layin, followed by a Porter steal and assist to Clyde Drexler to put Portland up 124-123 at the 39-second mark. . . A Drexler steal and pass to Porter set up a pair of free throws for the latter who posted the final score. . . Seattle played without Alton Lister and Maurice Lucas due to injuries.

BLAZERS 121, SONICS 115, April 10, 1987, At Portland (Game 77, 46-31)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.

1986-87 SERIES CAPSULE

PORTLAND

Despite recording fewer field goals than Seattle (284-267), the Trail Blazers outscored their Northwest counterpart 193-147 at the free throw line. Portland won the season series despite being outscored 728-721 in the six games. Kiki Vandeweghe averaged 32.8 points in the series, six points better than his season average in all games, including a 48-point effort March 5. The Blazer starting unit shot .550 (187-340) from the field.

SEATTLE

The Sonics dominated the rebounding wars, claiming a 245-216 advantage. Eddie Johnson averaged 16.0 points in three series appearances, up from his season average of 9.0 points a game. Fifteen Seattle players saw action in the six games, the second highest total for a Portland opponent during the year. Seattle put the ball up 42 times from three-point distance, more than any Blazer foe during the season (the Sonics converted 13 attempts for a .310 percentage).

BLAZERS vs. UTAH — Game-by-Game 1986-87

JAZZ 119, BLAZERS 110, November 1, 1986, At Utah (Game 2, 0-2)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
13-29	24-37	29-20	44-33	110-119	11,013

A total team effort by Utah destroyed the Trail Blazers in their first road game of the season. . . The Jazz enjoyed leads of 29-13 and 70-37 before Portland cut a 24-point deficit to nine in the final 10 minutes of the contest. . . Mark Eaton posted a triple-double of 15 points, 12 blocked shots and 20 rebounds. . . Utah, which outrebounded Portland 22-9 in the opening quarter, nabbed 66 rebounds on the night (to the Blazers' 49) to establish a new series record. . . Sam Bowie had a career-high 31 points to pace Portland.

BLAZERS 124, JAZZ 103, November 16, 1986, At Portland (Game 9, 4-5)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
35-21	33-21	18-27	38-34	124-103	12,666

The Trail Blazers offense hit 31 of 48 shots (.646) from the floor and the defense stifled the Jazz to a .356 (16-45) effort in the first half as Portland opened up a 68-42 halftime lead and rolled to victory. . . Utah turned the ball over 28 times to account for 26 Blazer points.

BLAZERS 121, JAZZ 113, January 13, 1987, At Portland (Game 38, 24-14)

1	2	3	4	Final	Att.
22-24	38-30	26-34	35-25	121-113	12,666

The Blazers scored six unanswered points to snap a 107 deadlock with 2:42 to play. . . The contest featured a showdown between Karl Malone (who scored a career-high 38 points and hauled down 16 rebounds) and Kenny Carr (who recorded 20 points and 19 rebounds). . . Clyde Drexler notched six points in the final 1:44. . . Portland finished with a 56-41 rebounding advantage and a 30-12 edge at the free throw line.

BLAZER SATELLITE RADIO

BILL SCHONELY

"Good evening basketball fans, wherever you may be. . ." With that statement Bill Schonely is doing what he does best, and what few others do nearly as well. For 17 years and nearly 1,600 games, he's been bringing Trail Blazer basketball to radio listeners from California north to Alaska. With that experience has come a reputation as one of the best play-by-play men in the business.

Schonely's voice is perhaps the most recognizable in Oregon, as the Blazer radio network is the largest in the NBA with some 27 affiliates on board. He's also become a national commodity as narrator of the NBA promotional spots that cover the country's television markets.

A native of Norristown, Penn., Schonz, as he's known to many, served in the U.S. Marine Corps before settling in Seattle where he worked as sports director of KVI radio for seven years. He served as the voice of the Seattle Totems of the Western Hockey League (and would later work for the NHL's Oakland Seals), University of Washington football, and Seattle Angels and Seattle Pilots baseball teams. The Pilots departed after just one season and the newly-created Portland Trail Blazers of the NBA came calling in search of their first announcer.

Schonely worked his 1,500th Blazer basketball game January 4, 1987. Friends and supporters from across the country paid tribute, and the date was proclaimed "Bill Schonely Day" by Portland Mayor Bud Clark. The second 1,500 is well underway.

Molokai, Hawaii is the off-season home for Schonely, where he manages a sporting goods store and fills in as a local television sports anchor.

GEOFF PETRIE

Geoff Petrie, the first-ever Portland Trail Blazer, enters his second season in the position of shooting instructor. He's in his third year as analyst on the team's radio broadcasts.

As shooting instructor, Petrie provides technical assistance to the Blazers on an individual basis. Being a member of Portland's broadcast crew, he observes the players every day, home and away, and has the opportunity to spot flaws and make adjustments with each player as needed on a daily basis.

Petrie doesn't just rely on standard video taping to get the job done, either. When it comes to shooting, he wrote the book, too. A graduate of Princeton, Petrie shared co-rookie-of-the-year honors with Dave Cowens of the Boston Celtics after being Portland's first draft selection prior to its inaugural season of 1970-71. The 6-4 guard set club records for assists and single-game scoring that remain the standards today.

Two years ago, in his first season behind the Blazer microphone, Petrie displayed a strong ability to provide insight into the action on the floor in a way that appealed to fans of all degree. He augmented the play-by-play of another Blazer original Bill Schonely. The two have grown up together in the Portland organization and possess a chemistry much sought but rarely obtained in the industry.

BLAZER MAILBAG WITH STEVE JONES

Steve Jones' weekly column, Blazer Mailbag, is featured in several publications throughout Oregon and southwest Washington. Beginning in the 1983-84 season, Blazer Mailbag became a regular feature in This Week magazine, which is delivered free to more than 600,000 homes every week in the tri-county area. Blazer Mailbag addresses issues pertaining to the Trail Blazers, the entire NBA and the sport of basketball in general. Fans who submit questions and have them used in this column receive two free tickets to a future Blazer game. Questions should be sent to Blazer Mailbag care of the Trail Blazers. Long time publishers of the weekly feature include This Week magazine; Vancouver Columbian; Ontario Argus-Observer; Newport News; and the Albany Democrat-Herald.

BLAZER PAGE

Blazer Page is a weekly feature of This Week magazine, delivered free to every home in the Portland Metropolitan area. Blazer Page is found on page seven of each issue. It contains timely news, features, notes and quotes about the Blazers, as well as columns written by front office personnel such as Harry Glickman, club president; Bucky Buckwalter, vice-president of basketball operations; and Jack Schalow, assistant coach and scout.

NEWSROOM 6

BLAZER TELEVISION NETWORK

Flagship station KOIN-TV, Channel 6, will again air 20 Blazer road games this season. The Blazer Television Network reaches nearly every television set in Oregon from KOIN in Portland to southern Oregon to Eugene.

STEVE JONES

A Portland native, Steve Jones comes from Franklin High School and the University of Oregon. He was an all-star guard in the now-defunct ABA, then played the 1975-76 season with the Trail Blazers before retiring.

Now, Jones has become a veteran of the broadcast business. He is entering his fifth year as the analyst for all Blazer telecasts. But he didn't come without first earning an impressive resume.

In 1976 (the season after he retired), Jones became a color commentator for CBS. He was part of the CBS announce team that handled the Trail Blazers famed Championship game. Also that year, he was the color analyst for the Blazers. Steve continued for three seasons with CBS, and the Denver Nuggets.

Finally, in 1979, Jones came home to Portland to join Bill Schonely on the Blazer radio microphone. During his tenure with the Blazers, Steve has additionally been with the USA Cable Network as a commentator for NBA games.

He stepped aside in 1981 on broadcasts to devote a full-time effort to the club's radio talk show, Blazer Sports Talk. The show has become the most popular sports talk show in Oregon. It now is aired not only prior to every Blazer game, but also on Monday night television throughout the year.

Jones also has a syndicated column, Blazer Mailbag, which is syndicated throughout the state of Oregon.

PAT LAFFERTY

Pat Lafferty, a 16-year veteran television and radio sportscaster in the state of Oregon, is in his second year as the play-by-play announcer for the Trail Blazers, working alongside analyst Steve Jones.

A native of Portland and 1967 graduate of the University of Oregon, Lafferty has been the Blazers' public address announcer at Memorial Coliseum the past four seasons when he's not in front of the television camera. He also serves the Portland front office in the capacity of sales account executive and co-hosts Blazer Sports Talk Special Edition.

Lafferty served as assistant station manager and sports director at KLOO Radio in Corvallis, where he also was the station's top advertising account representative for 15 years. He worked four years as a member of the Oregon State basketball television announcing crew and hosted Beaver Coach Ralph Miller's weekly program for five seasons. He'd also been the voice of Oregon State baseball and Corvallis High School football and basketball for 15 years.

Prior to entering the broadcast field in Corvallis, the 41-year-old Lafferty served as an army information officer in Vietnam from 1968-70. He and his wife, Isae, are the parents of 13-year-old twin sons, Dan and Sean.

BLAZER SPORTS TALK

Blazer Sports Talk, hosted by Steve Jones, airs on KGW 90 minutes prior to every game. Blazer Sports Talk Special Edition will air 50 weeks a year on Monday nights, from 6-8 p.m., hosted by Jones and Pat Lafferty.

"Starting in the center position for the #1 team..."

Toyota Dealers are the number one team because they have the players that lead the division in sales year after year. Like 4 x 4 trucks. And the Toyota Tercel 4 x 4 Wagon. And when it comes to import cars, Toyota Dealers have the number one selling import in the entire U.S. So see your local Toyota Dealer and get a number one deal.
